City Property Changing Hands-Prospector's in Town-A Fine Rain.

Special to the Gazette.

Brownwood, Aug. 13.-The splendid Davis one story building on East street one hundred and twenty by thirty feet was bought by N. A. Almon, for the sum of $2,600. Town property is changing hands rapidly at reasonable figures. There are several parties here from Waco and Lampasas on a prospecting tour. The Coggins Brothers, who represent more wealth than any two men in Brown county, are taking great interest in our schools and are determined that we shall have good schools in Brownwood next year and good houses for them to be taught in.

We had a splendid rain last night. The merchants feel confident of good crops and trade is lively.

CLEBURNE.

Adoption and Approval of Plans for the New Jail-Personal.

Special to the Gazette. Cleburne, Aug. 18—The county commissioners to-day adopted plans for a new jail. The building will be sixtyseven feet in depth and will have a frontage of sixty-two feet. It is to be-built of brick and will have cells that will accommodate forty-eight priseners, besides insane, female and juvenile cells. The building when completed will cost about $27,000. Bids will be advertised for immediately, and it is hoped that the work will be under way shortly after the first of September. The plans adopted were drawn by J. J. Ligon of Palestine, who will also bid on the iron work for Pauly Bros. of St. Louis for making of steel cages.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

A YEAR OF TRAGEDIES IN THE CALENDAR OF TIME.

Faney and Fact in Regard to Cholera-A Deadly Delusion-How People are Deceived and Robbed.

Special Correspondence of the Gazette.

Washington, August 10.—Lonisian-ians were especially shocked by the untimely fate of Louis Courad, son of Fillmore's secretary of war. The latter died in 1878 in New Orleans. I knew bim long and well. A plain, blunt old gentleman, he was accustomed to say harsh things, now and then, of the living and the dead, but never did he speak untruthfully if he was conclous of it. The son and all the vigor of intellect and pugnaciousness vigor of intellect and pugnaciousness of the father, and was winning fame and wealth when his charming wife, in the vainly insane effort to slay herself, killed the husband. It is the saddest story of all the sad and terrible deart histories of 1883, markets in the annals of the saddest story. ters of 1883, peerless in the annals of time for its tragedies, crimes, griefs, sorrows and matchless calamities. And yet we have probably read nothing but the preface to this book to be written by the ghostly hand of 1883.

A DEADLY DELUSION. A London tailor who came to this city last Friday, directly from Picca-dilly, where Colorel Bentley now has enough, on its career of desolation even in London and western Europe. has here in his shop, a copy of Eu-gene Sue's wonderful story, "The and the poor, nobility and plebians, Wandering Jew," and turning to the and as well, its wicked government, first sentences of the first chapter, read those strange ghostly sentences which make one's blood run coldly and excite a shudder ever afterwards when the scene so vividly imagined is recalled. Theley tracks of the Wandering Jew are described as seen on the Asian slope of Behring's Straits and then the story is told how Christ, ascending Calvary with the cross on his bleeding back asked this once cordusiner to suffer him to rest on his doorway. The anguished Savior was rudely repelled and turning upon the shoemaker, said,

"TARRY THOU TILL I COME." The unpitying Jew went forth even dream' and shocking deliniation of dweller in a pure republic, and riches human anguish, and one more shock- and poverty alike would be unknown. ing of human crimes. Rev. Dr. Croly, his admirable book, Salathiel, in uses the same tradition as a text on which he bases as fascinating recitals and as sound philosophy as that evoked by the more vigorous creative fancy of the wonderful Frenchman. But in view of possibly coming events, let everybody re-read these two books and thank the GAZETTE for the suggestion of the delightful task. Better, of this kind, were never penned: If cholera comes, readers of the GAZETTE, obeying its injunctions in this behalf, will have exhausted the terrors of the pestilence that wasteth at noonday and walketh in darkness, even before its footprints are discovered on the western shore of the Atlantic, as, thirty-four years ago, by Eugene Sue, on remotest icy barriers of Polar seas.

WHY CHOLERA IS BLESSED.

It would seem if this tradition of the Wandering Jew be well founded, that the Savior, in cursing the Israelitish 'sutor" did not hesitate to curse the whole human race, and yet we are told he was neither a merciless nor a revengeful God. I haven't much faith in the tradition, but a vast deal in the terrors of coming cholera. I don't believe that God sends such plagues upon mankind, as philosophers and churchmen have insisted and written, in mercy to our race. I don't think a good God or a wretched deathless Jew has aught to do with the terrors and anguish and broken hearts and desolate homes that mark the path or follow in the train of the frightful plague. I don't believe that there is any necessity in nature for these occa-sional reductions, by this "providen-tial" violence and "murder" of mankind. If the worst and incapable and foolish alone were taken and those who serve God and his creatures left; if the race were improved by these processes of slaughter, we might accept the one as "special providence." But nowhere do we find populations too deuse for its subsistence. Population does not tend to increase, as has often been stated, faster than its food-producing capacity. One old fel-low whose books and pamphlets and than political economy were universally accepted at the beginning of this century and is yet commonly approved as final authority, used to say that population increased in geometrical and its food products only in geometrical progression, and thus the terrible pressure of population upon subsist-ence. If the United States produce food and clothing enough for fifty millions and in twenty-five years the population be one hundred millions, the food product must be necessarily doubled. Seventy-five years later the population will be two hundred millions, but the food product would be enough for only one hundred and fifty millions. You add only fifty millions each twenty-five years to the food product while papulation will do product while papulation. duct while population still doubles itself every twenty-five years. Such was the theory of Malthres. To construe the theory liberally and as now accepted by statesmen, it may be said that the tendency of population is to outgrow possibilities of food producto be passing.

tion and that population increases be-youd the means of subsistence. Chol-era comes, you will observe, to by sheer force of these laws, take $1800,000,000 annually away from the masses and give this vast sum to the few. This robbery doubles its sums much more rapidly than population grows, until finally there are vast multiplied by having not a farthing. multitudes having not a farthing, while the enormously rich grow richer in that geometrical progression which made silly people think, one hundred years ago, that at this date the people on the globe would be more multitudinous than sands on the seasibide of Pekin.

Bod's grounders

The world and its indwellers were wisely adapted to one another by an allwise God. There was and there is no need for a Wandering Jew to slaughter ten and twenty per cent of the human race six times in each century. No where is population to dense. It is not to be a population to dense. dilly, where Colorel Bentley now has his hunting shirts made, says that the human race six times in each continuous shirts made, says that the impression prevails among his class in England that the island will be ravinged as never before by cholera. Its most frightful distinctiveness, he insists, occurs in cholera latitudes and that it has already entered, modestly devours crusts. It is the unjust, un-equal operation of wicked laws that teen hundred dollars was subscribed first which, after thus organizing society, > that the people are multiply more rapidly than earth's capacity for food production. The capacity for the absorption of wealth and power by the rich does outgrow the geometrical progression. They are a hundredfold more numerous than ever before. And yet the knaves who beget this condition of earth's millions simply evade the the truth and delude their victims by telling that they must multiply less rapidly and that cholera is God's blessing in disguise.

But one can't discuss this question in on that blackest Friday when the sun refused to shine, and once in seventeen years does he make the circuit of the earth leading cholera in the train of and see how false is the one and ruinhuman woes that follow and pave his path with gravestones.

THE PLACE-HOLLERS are coming up out of Texas like locusts from the deserts. Malloy, of Galveston custom-house fame, who has held offices for twenty years, of one sort and another, in Texas, and a first-rate gentleman withal, and that most popular postmaster at Houston, Mr. Johnson, who was a pet of Garfield, and said to be the most esteemed of representabe the most esteemed of representa-tives of the federal house in Texas, and two or three others, marshals or post-masters, are silently groping about the departments 'mending their fences.

A monstrous row still progresses about the custom-house at Brownsville and Laredo. There was a change, which was no change. The same gang that nominally went out remained in. It was only a change of front. If there was requery a year ago there are only more cormorants to-day preying upon the people and the custom-houses. Opinions about Folger are mightily mixed. He has been in office all his life and as a trading New York politi-cian he was alleged to be as skillfull as corrupt. He was of Tweed's allies, if not of his gang. His course on the bench has been harshly criticised as worse than partisan, and now, as treasurer, people are led to suspect that it is not honesty he would employ in the management of the public revenues. Strange stories come up from Browns-ville and Laredo of which I will give specimens in a day or two. It is quite impossible to get the bottom facts, as I am told, before the department. The ring that runs the machine is rich. The ring that runs the machine is rich. Greenville, August 13.—Last night Greenville, August 13.—Last night of the knaveries of which they are cognizant. Slung shots, daggers and six-shooters are still used by hired assassins on the corrupted border and smuggling can pay for silence. Folger is stupidly listless or indifferent or surely corrupt, or letter-writers from the Rio Grande are most marvelous there. London and the knows and several addresses made. Among them was one made by Capt. Among them was one made by Capt. Such is a fair and just statement of the creed of men pretending to be statesmen. Nothing is further from the truth. Wicked or ignorant and wholly ineapable government's resort to this shallow reasoning to defend and perpetuate codes and systems of laws and governments by which they and the few they represent are enormously enriched.

Other Losses.

Atlanta, Ga., August 13.—Loss by the Kimbail House fire $800,000 on furniture. Only $50,000 insurance, One reason why the owners carried so little insurance was because of the high rate charged. The Kimbail House was considered the worst risk in the city, and the rate of two and a half per cent, was charged, while on ordinary and the multitude aggrievously impoverished. Murder and Spicide at St. Louis-Texas

Bill in Trouble. St. Louis, August 13.- Last night a probable murder and suicide occurred at Refeir's saloon on Cherokee street, during a game of cards, in which Frank Wahl, proprietor of a notion store, and August Dunker played. Dunker, who was playfully accused of rubbing too many marks, withdrew from the game and left threatening violence. No attention was paid to him, and in a few m nutes he returned, inviting Wahl to the sidswalk and shor him in the abdomen, inflicting a probably fatal wound. He fired two other shots without damage, and then seeing what he had done, ran to the backyard of his home and discharged the fourth load into his own brain.

TEXAS BILL'S NARROW ESCAPE. Hutchinson, Ks., August 13 .-- A man named Emerson Burk, generally known as Texas Bill, shot and killed a baker named Dula yesterday. Emerson was arrested, and about midnight last night sixty masked men went to the jail, hammered down the doors, and were just about taking the murderer out to hang him, when the sheriff arrived with a large posse and drove them off. Emerson is known as a desparado, and is said to have killed several men. His act yes-

A Few of the Influences at Work to Defeat the Amendment.

Special to the Gazette. Hon W. T. Armstead, chairman of the house committee on constitutional amendments, ssid to-day: "In my opinion, opposition to the adoption of the constitutional amendments to be voted on to-morrow, springs mainly from the influence of the syndicate and owners of the two millions of outstanding state bonds, who desire to see them defeated in order that they may sell their bonds at a large premium to the state. They are not satisfied with forty cents, which they have been re-ceiving, but they want one hundred on the dollar for them, at the expense of the children of the state."
